But a few days remain before the large bounties offered by the government sense to be given. The first of April is but a few days off, and there is now a good chance to enlist in any branch of the service. The work of recruiting should be vigorously pushed forward. THE SIXTY-SEVENTE,-Nearly all the he members of this regiment reported yesterday. We have not heard of the recepion of any order as to their destination, or time of departure. This regiment has reergited over three hundred fresh men since coming home.

THE SIXTY-BIGHTE COMING .- A telegram from Gov. Brough to the military authorities at Camp Cisveland, received yes terday evening, announces that the Sixtyeighth Ohio will arrive here to-day from the front. The Sixty-eighth has re-enlisted and disgust. They have paid the costs in all is coming home for its furlough.

We would acknowledge the kindness and favor shown by the agent in giving the Industrial School Scholars free admittance to the levee yesterday, and to General Tom Thumb and party for their courtesy and politeness. One of the boys (an orphan) was admitted on the stage and conversed with Commodore Nutt. All these little things go to make life pleasant and are not forgotten. W. R.

More Burglars Arrested,-Four men who give their names as Edward Wilson, Jackson Brown, James Bowman, and James Gibbons, have been arrested for breaking into the office of Southworth & Williams, last Sunday afternoon. They are undoubtedly connected with the band who committed the Beckwith burglary on Sunday night last.-It is not deemed best to publish at present, the detailed history of either of these crimes, or of several of similar character, recently committed here. The examination of these suspected burglars will come off on Monday next, and will doubtless prove a very interesting one.

ARRIVAL OF THE STIE.-The S7th Ohio The Origin of the Festival and the Mode

Easter Sunday, "the queen of festivals," somes, in accordance with the weighty decision of the worshipful Council of Nice, on | Lieutenant Colonel Blessing, and numbers the first Sunday after the first full moon following the vernal equinox—and that Sunday (the almanao-makers and the lessening moon inform us,) is to-morrow. The festival celebrates the resurrection of our Saviour, and is a continuation and Christianization of the Jewish fastival of the passover, called the Pascha. Traces of the Jewish origin of the festival are still noticeable in the present mode of celebrating it. The English, up to a very recent day, ats tansy pudding at the festival dinner, in commemoration of the hitter herbs of the Jewish feast; and the colored eggs, which by universal custom are used for presents on Haster morning, are to

This latter story, however, may find its origin in the fact of Jonah P. From this fact arises the prevalent belief, in England as well as Ireland, that the sun shines more James Kelley-have been centinued till brightly on Easter Sunday than any other day, -a belief that adds fresh force to Suckling's sprightly comparison-

"And oh, she dances such a way,"
The sun, upon a Easter day,
Is not so fine a sight."

The custom of Baster eggs and tansy-pudings we have already alluded to. In some parts of Northern England it was the habit, astinte as 1822, of the men of each village, to go through the streets, lifting three times om the ground each woman they met, and claiming, as a reward, a kiss or a sixpence. For the benefit of "strong minded" readers we hasten to add that the women had the same privilege on the next day.
